

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

my discord is Neko Koda#5132 if ya down

Yesterday, 10:22 PM

I've got quite the splitting headache this morning, I'm not about to sit here and get into a pseudo-debate over this when I KNOW it's going to turn into a shouting match with us talking over each other.

I'd rather keep it here;

On that note, I'd be willing to hear you out, which points did I mistranslate?

10:38 AM ✓

"First interjection is a LEAP, rape is NOT at all comparable to denying service to a couple, because on one hand you're just NOT selling something to people, and the other is PHYSICALLY ASSAULTING them."

When did I say they were comparable? My point was that beliefs and actions are different

10:40 AM

Correct, however, there's a HUGE difference between not taking a commission and physical assault.

10:41 AM ✓

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

Correct, however, there's a HUGE difference between not taking a commission and physical assault.

10:41 AM ✓

yes

i never deny that

10:41 AM

Then why make the comparison?

10:41 AM ✓

to use it as an example to demonstrate the difference between a belief and an action never said they were the same never said they were comparable

10:42 AM

Okay, yeah, there's a difference between a belief and an action, fine. But if that's truly the point you're making, then all you're really doing is deflecting because that's NOT the argument.

10:44 AM ✓

in the section I was responding to you were talking about freedom of speech, my point was that denying service isn't a speech thing

denying service is an action

10:45 AM

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

the argument

10:44 AM

in the section I was responding to you were talking about freedom of speech, my point was that denying service isn't a speech thing

denying service is an action

10:45 AM

An action that is a part of freedom of speech.

10:46 AM ✓

denying service is not freedom of speech

10:47 AM

Freedom of speech coincides with freedom of expression, declining a commission because it goes against your religious beliefs (the freedom to practice religion, also protected under free speech).

That's practicing your freedom of speech

10:49 AM ✓

even then denying service doesn't fall under that, that's not freedom of expression or speech

also I could make the argument that the bible isn't anti-gay marriage

10:50 AM

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

also I could make the argument that the bible isn't anti-gay marriage

10:50 AM

if it DID fall under the freedom of speech then they would never be able to pass those anti discrimination laws

10:52 AM

You are throwing like... three different arguments against me, and like... not one is accurate.

"denying service doesn't fall under that, that's not freedom of expression or speech"

Yes it is.

Masterclass Cakes is allowed to decline a COMMISSION if they don't wish to do it. With this particular situation not even be a full-on denial of service, but we'll get to that.

"also I could make the argument that the bible isn't anti-gay marriage"

Not the argument, don't side step.

"then they would never be able to pass those anti discrimination laws"

Anti-Discrimination laws, first of all, are in VERY few places in the United States, which is something I point out twice in talking about that segment, but furthermore, even then, AGAIN, those are centered purely around the full on denial of service, and not just not taking a fucking cake commission.

10:56 AM ✓

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

...which is something I point

furthermore, even then, AGAIN, those are centered purely around the full on denial of service, and not just not taking a fucking cake commission.

10:56 AM ✓

1. Now your pivoting I never say that companies can NEVER deny service, I give an example in my video of if the customer asks for a ingredient that the baker can't work with that would be fine, I'm against discrimination based on sexuality

2. You're literally trying to use freedom of religion as to why discriminating against gay people is okay

3. they still exist, and if denying service cuz the customer is gay falls under "free speech" then those laws wouldn't be able to be passed as by your logic they would go against the first amendment

11:01 AM

I am not pivoting, I initially brought up the argument

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

I am not pivoting, I initially brought up the argument that Philosopossum was bringing up in the video to clarify the discussion being had, being that the bakery was denying the commission for the gay wedding cake, you're the one conflating it with the full on denial of service of people who are LGBT (see, your car repairman example). That's where your argument falls flat.

Second of all, again, whether or not the bible says pro-gay marriage isn't the point, Phillips says it went against his beliefs, that's all that matters, don't side step.

Thirdly, Once again you're conflating the denial of a commission with outright refusal to sell anything, which wasn't the initial conversation, shown by even as far back as the Ben Shapiro clip.

11:06 AM ✓

Like, to boil it down in the simplest way so we can start back at square 1; Phillips didn't want to take the commission to make a gay wedding cake, he WAS still willing to sell the couple something else.

11:08 AM ✓

1. So if a straight couple had came in and asked for the same item would the baker have provided it? if so that is discrimination

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

11:08 AM

1. So if a straight couple had came in and asked for the same item would the baker have provided it? If so that is discrimination

2. So if someone says "I don't wanna serve gay people cuz they're lesser" should that also be defended?

3. If you have the item, are able to make and sell it, but won't because the couple it's for is gay how is that not discrimination

You're literally paroting smartass birbs video on the topic Suzy just stop

11:09 AM

No, I'm trying to better explain what the situation is to someone who CLEARLY has no idea what's being discussed.

11:10 AM ✓

The point is whether or not Phillips should be required to make a special cake SPECIFICALLY for a gay wedding, should he be required to accept a commission he doesn't want to take?

He would've been willing to sell the couple something else, and as you said in your own video, at the end of the day, a gay wedding cake isn't THAT much different from a normal wedding cake, so if the couple asked for a "wedding cake" instead of specifically commissioning one for a gay wedding, it probably would've been fine considering that's what Phillips himself said.

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

11:10 AM

The point is whether or not Phillips should be required to make a special cake SPECIFICALLY for a gay wedding, should he be required to accept a commission he doesn't want to take?

He would've been willing to sell the couple something else, and as you said in your own video, at the end of the day, a gay wedding cake isn't THAT much different from a normal wedding cake, so if the couple asked for a "wedding cake" instead of specifically commissioning one for a gay wedding, it probably would've been fine considering that's what Phillips himself said.

Again, it's more comparable to asking a digital artist to draw nsfw when they don't feel comfortable with that.

11:13 AM ✓

You never demonstrated that the couple asked for something done to the cake that the baker couldn't do simply that it was for a gay wedding had you said that the cake was requested to be made a certain way the baker couldn't do I could agree with u

but u dont

11:14 AM

Neko Koda

@neko_koda ouldnt do I

but u dont

11:14 AM

Well, because it's probably something he could've done, but on that same line of logic, would he be forced to make a Halloween cake if it's asked? Because Phillips doesn't do taht either.

11:14 AM ✓

Phillips does do wedding cakes which as far as I can see is what the couple requested the cake doesnt change because of who it's for and again

if they requested something ABOUT THE CAKE that he couldnt do

I would agree

but they didnt and u never prove that like here lets take your artist example

"Hey can you draw stills of my oc elizabeth"
"Oh sure totally"
"Thanks"

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

make your artist example

"Hey can you draw stills of my oc elizabeth"

"Oh sure totally"

"Thanks"

"wait your trans?"

"Yea"

"sorry I don't take trans commissions"

11:17 AM

Can you prove that's more what happened?
Because everything that I can look at, as someone who lives in the STATE that it happened in, the couple DID ask for specifically a cake for their gay wedding.

11:18 AM ✓

Was the cake any different from a normal wedding cake?

11:19 AM

That was never specified in any court reporting.

So NONE of us could know that

11:19 AM ✓

You're serious right now?

you were arguing that the cake was different in your video

or at least implying it

or at least implying it and now you're saying we can can't know

11:20 AM

No

don't fucking strawman

Now

let me explain this

11:20 AM ✓

unless you can prove that the cake they were requesting was different in any way from any other wedding cake u have no point here

11:21 AM

Okay then, fine.
If that's how you feel.

Upload the video

Watch what happens

11:22 AM ✓

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

Upload the video

Watch what happens

11:22 AM ✓

what is the SCC gonna make response videos to me again?

11:22 AM

I'm not gonna sit here and let you Vii Omega me in an argument you obviously don't want to listen to.

11:22 AM ✓

aiight thats a low blow and u know it

11:23 AM

Maybe so, but you're continuing to but in when you know damn well taht I'm trying to give a retort.

Piling on as many arguments as you can to shut out the conversation

I'm not gonna deal with it

11:24 AM ✓

I'm asking you to addresss ONE argument

11:24 AM

and I'm TRYING to

11:24 AM ✓

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

Document

and I'm TRYING to

11:24 AM ✓

which you are not

11:24 AM

No, I AM

you just run me in fucking circles

11:24 AM ✓

Okay here's one direct question, was the cake they requested in any way different from any other wedding cake the baker had previously made?

11:24 AM

In message and event, yes.
But he SHOULD be allowed to deny a commission if he doesn't like the message or event.

Something that I distinctly remember being a talking point in the coverage.

11:26 AM ✓

so tell me why should he be allowed to deny a cake for a gay wedding why is that okay in your eyes?

11:27 AM

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

11:26 AM ✓

so tell me why should he be allowed to deny a cake for a gay wedding why is that okay in your eyes?

11:27 AM

"Jack serves all customers; he simply declines to express messages or celebrate events that violate his deeply held beliefs, creative professionals who serve all people should be free to create art consistent with their convictions without the threat of government punishment." ~quoted from the defense in the court order

11:27 AM ✓

Like, Phillips is a cake artist, and as such, he can put rules on what he'd want to make.

Like, Blaze the Movie Fan also brings up the notion that under his beliefs, if someone was to ask to make a cake for a nazi get together, they would also have to be obligated for that.

11:29 AM ✓

are you comparing gay people to actual nazis?

11:29 AM

No.

Are you really going to twist my words to say otherwise?

11:30 AM ✓

Neko Koda

@neko_koda

Are you really going to twist my words to say otherwise?

11:30 AM ✓

also that comparison doesnt work

11:30 AM

Why not?

11:30 AM ✓

a "nazi wedding" is a theme a gay wedding is just who theyre marrying also nazis are inherently hateful and gay people arent\

11:31 AM

(It's great because this is the exact same notion brought against your rape comparison)

11:33 AM ✓

no suzy

because you are treating rejecting a cake for a gay wedding and a nazi wedding as comparable

11:34 AM

But I thought they were just cakes, Koda.

11:35 AM ✓

But I thought they were just cakes, Koda.

11:35 AM ✓

in a nazi wedding the only way the baker could know its such is if he was asked to make a nazi themed cake

I gotta head out the video will prolyl go up if you were trynna intimidate me or some shit earlier it aint gonna work

11:37 AM
